Department of Socio-humanitarian disciplines

Name of the discipline (module)	Phylosophy
Code and name of the specialty	1-89 02 01-02 Sports and Tourist Activity (Management in Tourism)
Course	2
Semester	3
The number of academic hours of the discipline (module): Lectures Seminars Practicals Laboratory practicals	112, 42 22 20
The form of control	Examination
The number of credits	3

The content of the discipline

Philosophy plays a leading role in shaping the worldview and methodological culture of an individual, as it has a centuries-old history of reflection upon the fundamental issues of human existence. The study of philosophy is focused on mastering the legacy of the world's and national philosophical thought by students, developing skills of independent thinking, the ability to generate and argue their own position regarding to various social phenomena. The main goal of studying philosophy is the formation of an integral vision of the world and systematic way of thinking, overcoming the fragmentariness of professional perception, creating the basics of a humanistic worldview. The main goals of studying philosophy are the formation of the ability for creative and critical thinking in professional and social fields, mastering the modern style of rationally oriented and scientific thinking, the ability to clearly state and ground their socio-political, professional and life-meaning positions. As a result of studying the "Philosophy" subject students should know the main problems of philosophy and the main point of the most important philosophical doctrines, key ideas and categories of philosophical analysis, basic values of modern culture, socio-cultural grounds and patterns of human activity (including professional), basic principles, laws and modes of cognitive activity, to understand the patterns of the society functioning and development, the point and content of global modern problems, as well as the basic strategies and prospects for their solution